

TEBODIN

Brings measurable sustainability to Indonesia

Tebodin Indonesia is the latest addition to the global network of about 50 offices in 20 countries of Tebodin Consultants & Engineers. The Jakarta office brings vast knowledge and experience in sustainable solutions of its global network to the local Indonesian job market, building market and industry.

The best of both worlds

Mr. Petr Kurka, Area Director Asia-Pacific: 'We believe it is key to settle into the local market. To connect with local people and support the community. To help improve infrastructure, support education and employ local staff. Our expansion strategy is all about people. We employ a fascinating global human capital.'

Tebodin's extensive network allows them to offer their clients the best of both worlds: integrated engineering and consultancy expertise, combined with local knowledge and a global approach. This way, the company ensures the smooth execution of projects small and large, single field or multidisciplinary.

Indonesia

The new office, opened in Jakarta last April, is the fourth of Tebodin in the Asia Pacific region, and immediately started out with three sizable projects for Akzo Nobel Paints, Cabot and Knauf Gypsum. Recently, two additional projects have been awarded by Huntsman and OCI Melamine. Director of Tebodin Indonesia, Mr. Richard Oude Reimerink, welcomes local dedicated professionals: 'For running projects as well as challenges to come, we continue to recruit experienced and creative new colleagues and have them work in our international teams. This way we are ready to deliver international expertise with local input.'

Together, the global network creates a bridge between the traditionally separated worlds of consultancy and engineering and has made the company a front-runner in technology and sustainability.

Sustainability with certainty

Tebodin puts much emphasis on sustainability, says Mr. Oude Reimerink: 'Sustainable design benefits the environment, our clients, our client's end users - all of us.' Tebodin is especially experienced in taking the uncertainty out of being environmentally friendly, with measurable performances. For example, sustainable design can reduce energy use with 50%, CO2 emission and water use with up to 40%, and solid waste even with 70%. Here, we can mention some reference projects

German DGNB and Gulf region's EPRS. Mr. Oude Reimerink: 'Recently, Tebodin has executed a BREEAM certification for Neinver's shopping mall in Poland and LEED consultancy projects for DSM in China, River Garden in Czech Republic and TNT in the Netherlands. These sustainability standards and technologies are highly applicable to industrial buildings and retail, office and residential developments worldwide - and now with Tebodin in Indonesia, too.'
